Leading Companies from the Glass Industry set to showcase their latest innovations at glasspex INDIA & glasspro INDIA from 14-16 September 2023

160+ exhibitors from India and abroad will be participating at the mega trade fair in Mumbai; Over 6000 visitors are expected to attend the 3-day show.

September 2023: The country's leading trade fair organiser, Messe Düsseldorf India, is all geared up to host the next editions of India's premier events on the glass industry – glasspex India & glasspro India - from September 14 to 16. Leading companies from across the world will come together on an integrated platform to present the latest trends & innovations in glass production, processing and processed glass as well as to network with each other.

The rapid growth of the glass industry, especially in the last few years, is attributed to factors such as increased application of glass in construction, design & architecture, rising need for energy-conservation and growing demand for sustainable packaging.

The 7th edition of glasspex India, will continue to showcase the widest range of production, processing & finishing technologies for hollow glass, hollow glass products and applications, glass packaging technologies, measurement & control engineering and much more.

glasspro India, in its 4th edition, will present high-tech glass production techniques, latest trends, cutting-edge glass processing solutions, tools, glass products and applications, auxiliary products and services for the flat glass industry; mirroring the exponential demand for glass. As part of glasspro INDIA, fenestrationpro INDIA will drive discussions on the design trends and energy-efficient building technologies.

The shows enjoy an international reputation and this year, alongside domestic exhibitors, leading solution providers from countries like China, Czech Republic, France, Germany, Italy, Mexico, UK and USA, will also exhibit their most cutting-edge solutions at the show. In addition to that, 3 country pavilions will also be set up at the event by China, Germany & Italy to showcase numerous innovative solutions from these countries.

With a product range so wide and multi-faceted, the 2 shows will attract attendees from a broad spectrum of industries such as construction, architecture, pharmaceuticals, beverages, cosmetic & perfumery manufacturers, lighting, glass instrument makers, interior design and more.

While glasspex India is supported by the All India Glass Manufacturers Association (AIGMF) and the German Engineering Federation (VDMA), glasspro India is organised together with Glass Bulletin. Both the events are powered by glasstec Düsseldorf, the world's leading exhibition for the glass industry.

The show will be complemented by two engaging side programs:

On the evening of 14th September 2023, the 5th Glass Bulletin Awards will recognise and celebrate the achievements of individuals and companies for their laudable contributions towards the growth of the glass industry.

On 15th September 2023, The All India Glass Manufacturers' Federation will organise its 14th biennial International Conference. This year's theme for the conference is "Decarbonization for the Sustainable Glass Industry". The highly-focused technical sessions will deep dive into the necessary measures that need to be taken by the glass industry for achieving the goal of a circular economy.

Looking forward to a spectacular line-up of networking and business opportunities at the show, Thomas Schlitt, Managing Director – Messe Düsseldorf India, says, "I am delighted to see that the 2023 editions of glasspex INDIA and glasspro INDIA have received a wonderful response from the industry. These editions will reflect the modern and innovative facet of the glass, façade, door and window industry and position the Indian market as a forerunner on the global stage. With a perfect mix of exhibition showcase, technical sessions and a prestigious award ceremony, we have left no stone unturned in ensuring that each attendee has a fruitful time at the event."
